

9. Confidentiality. Each party must hold Protected Information of the other party in confidence and must only use or disclose that Protected Information in accordance with this agreement

10. Permitted Use and Disclosure. Each party may use and copy the other party's Protected Information for the Permitted Purpose and may share that information with its directors, officers, employees and professional advisers who have a need to know the information for the Permitted Purpose, provided that any such person is under confidentiality obligations equivalent to the those set out in this agreement. Each party must record the full name of any person to whom it discloses the other party's Protected Information and must promptly provide those names to the other party on request.